Wednesday, March 20 - 4:45 PM, Schaefer 106

We will be welcoming back three alumni to learn how they translated their SMCM science degrees into exciting environmental careers. Carrie Kennedy '99 is a Coastal Fisheries Program Manager at the Maryland Department of Natural Resources. Damien Ossi '97 is a Wildlife Biologist with the Washington DC Department of Energy and the Environment. Matt Robinson '04 is an Environmental Protection Specialists with the Washington DC Department of Energy and the Environment. All panelists will share what their jobs are like on a daily basis, how their current job connects to what they learned at SMCM, and will share advice that they would have liked to have gotten when they were in college based on what they do now. There will also be plenty of time for questions from the audience.

This event is free and open to the public. It is meant for a general audience.
If you are an instructor, please announce it to your students.
