

Life after SMC

An Alum Shares Her Experiences

Wondering what you'll do after you finish your studies at St. Mary's College? Alison Curry ('16) is returning to campus to share her experiences. Bring your questions and curiosities about the "real world," transitioning to new studies and research, and finding a place for yourself in professional communities.

Alison Curry ('16)

Alison, an Anthropology and History double major at St. Mary's, realized her interest in and passion about Polish-Jewish history. Her SMP merged her historical framework with an anthropological methodology by focusing on understanding Polish remembrance of the Jewish past through material culture analysis. After graduating in May 2016, Alison began her graduate studies in two programs: an MA in Holocaust and Genocide Studies and a Certificate program in Digital Humanities. She has continued the research that began with her SMP in both graduate programs and hopes to pursue a Ph.D. in the future.
